Sligo Arts Service

Sligo Arts Service is a department of Sligo County Council, working in partnership with Sligo Borough Council, The Arts Council of Ireland, and key stakeholders locally, regionally and nationally to deliver a high quality Arts Service for the people of Sligo. Operating from its office in Sligo Development Centre, Sligo Arts Service delivers a programme of arts activities and provides advice, grants and information in response to local community need. The planning and delivery of the arts service and annual programmes is guided by Space for Art Sligo Arts Plan 2007 - 2012.

For 2010, Sligo's Chamber Music Festival has been anchored in Sligo by renaming it 'Music in Drumcliffe' and the use of the image Shoreline Bog by the distinguished artist Seán McSweeney. Programming decisions have been taken in collaboration with the Vogler Quartet. The festival will continue to be produced by Sligo Arts Service and managed by Caroline Wynne, Artscope Ltd over the May Bank Holiday Weekend. In the current climate, the goal of Sligo Arts Service is to ensure the survival of the festival and to anchor it in Sligo. New steps will be taken, with old friends, to keep pace with change, to redevelop the festival over the coming years, and to ensure it retains its place as one of Ireland's most distinguished chamber music festivals.

Introduction

Music in Drumcliffe, the new name for this annual festival, continues many of the elements that have established Drumcliffe as a valued venue for chamber music. The members of the Vogler Quartet are joined by artists of international standing, from Ireland, various parts of Europe and beyond. The venue, St Columba's church, dates from the same period as some of the music to be performed. Using masonry from the ancient monastery, it was erected in 1809, some ten years after Beethoven wrote his Quartet Op. 18 No. 3, and less than 20 years before Schubert completed his great C major Quintet. Because it seats around 200 people, it has an apt intimacy; but it also has sufficient resonance to give the sound of small groups a pleasing combination of clarity and richness. Alongside Beethoven and Schubert, the Vogler Quartet and guests will perform works by Schumann, Chopin, Golijov, Ravel, de Falla, Menotti, Dvořák, Saint-Saëns, Mozart, Tavener, Gubaidulina and Neil Martin.

The artistic connections of Drumcliffe are above all enshrined in the churchyard, in the grave of W.B. Yeats (1865-1939). This writer of poetry that is among the most musical-sounding in the English language had long family connections with this part of Ireland. He spent much of his childhood in this area, and in 1805 his grandfather had been appointed rector of this parish. Recognising this, Saturday and Sunday's late night concerts take on a Yeatsian theme. Saturday's 10pm concert by The West Ocean String Quartet includes 'Some Vague Utopia' a suite composed by Neil Martin on WB Yeats. Sunday's 10pm concert by The Oriel Trio and Patricia Rozario includes Tavener's Yeats Songs 'To a Child Dancing in the Wind'.

Music lovers can look forward to a weekend of inspiring chamber music over the May Bank Holiday Weekend in the intimate, evocative setting of Drumcliffe, Sligo.
