Sligo Chamber Music Festival

@SligoChamberMus

We invite you to explore Sligo International Chamber Music Festival – a festival for all generations! Since its establishment in 2000 at St Columba's Church Drumcliffe, the Festival has become one of Ireland's leading international chamber music festivals and is now a highlight in the annual calendar of music events. Under Artistic Director Tim Vogler, the festival offers its loyal audience and new visitors alike the opportunity to experience high standards of programming through a fresh choice of artists performing alongside our internationally acclaimed ensemble-in-residence, the Vogler Quartet.

Significantly, Music Generation Sligo has come on board as a key partner with Sligo County Council Arts Office to develop Tuned In! - an innovative youth programme with Youth Curator Aoife Ní Bhriain. You will find full details of our masterclasses and events inside. We continue our collaboration with the Royal Irish Academy of Music and we are delighted to announce a new venture with RTÉ Contempo Quartet who perform this year and prepare for the première of a new String Octet with the Vogler Quartet at the 2017 Festival.

This year, a number of concerts and events will take place in The Model in Sligo town, in addition to Drumcliffe Church. We look forward to welcoming you for the weekend.

Tuned In! Music Generation Sligo Masterclass & Performance Programme @ The Model, Sligo

Tuned In! Sligo International Chamber Music Festival Youth Programme is a new short intensive chamber music experience curated by Aoife Ní Bhriain for student string quartets and their tutors, combining masterclasses and performances. Participants will deepen their understanding of music and improve their playing within the nurturing environment of Sligo International Chamber Music Festival. Students and tutors have the opportunity to work with the Vogler Quartet on selected repertoire and to learn, network and attend Tuned In! festival concerts with fellow students and tutors.
